

I am disgusted at the new rules for the language that can now be used on both television and radio. Basicly there is no censorship because now the f-word has been approved so now basic tv will be just like HBO. I don't know why it was okayed-television is going down the tube with all the shows about sex anyway and now this is adding to the trash of it all. Why there are not to many family shows out there is beyond me. The t.v.'s main demographic they're going for for advertisement is men between the ages of 18-30, and they aren't even watching anymore. I don't think t.v. will get too many family orriented fans of this new approval of the f-word.
